Re New Pupils.

The attention of parents is called to the fact that Easter is drawing near. It is the custom to allow children to enter the school twice per year, at the opening in August and at Easter time. Parents having children of the full age of 6 years, are required to take notice and send their children at Easter time, April 18. The School Ordinance calls for the attendance of every child between 6 and 15 years of age. Unless the age of 6 years has been reached or is within a month, do not send your child, as he cannot properly understand the work.

New Process for Tax Recovery

Provisions in the new Tax Recovery Act, which will shortly be introduced in the Legislature by the Hon. Minister of Municipal Affairs, will change entirely the procedure thru which lands in arrears of taxes will be sold.

Instead of being sold by public auction the year after taxes are due and the original owner given a year in which to redeem these, a caveat will be filed in the Lands Titles Office by the Municipality against that land. This caveat will be filed the year following the levy.

Approximately a year later the Municipality will apply for title, if the taxes are still in arrears; subsequently and during the following year the land must be offered for sale at public auction by the municipality.

Until the time the land is actually sold, the original owner can come in and redeem it, even if the title has passed to the Municipality; but to do so he must clear off the tax sheet, both arrears and later accumulations of taxes and must pay all costs. In the case he so redeems the land, all encumbrances are restored to their former position.

This gives the owner two full years at least in which to redeem his property. It is expected that this process will be less expensive in administration than the former process.

Stony Plain Town Council.

The Town Council held its regular monthly meeting on Thursday evening last, March 2nd. Present, The Mayor, Councillors John Armbruster, Hardywick, Lard, Oatway, and Hy Oppertshanser.

An interim report was made by the Pound Committee as to arrangements being made to establish the Pound in a new location and the hiring of a Poundkeeper.

Fire and Light Committee report showed that visits had been made to the places in the downtown section and copies of the Fire Bylaw left with the proprietors. The intention was to make a return visit after an interval of ten days, to see if the instructions were being complied with.

After some discussion took place on the matter of reconstructing the bridge on the Main road south, over Demonstration Creek, the Building Committee was instructed to take the matter up with the Provincial authorities, and ascertain if the latter were willing to contribute a sum equal to two-thirds of the cost of same, as is usual in such cases.

The bylaw regulating the sale of milk in town will be brought down at the next meeting. An instruction to the Secretary provided for the inclusion of a clause in this bylaw for the inspection of all meat sold in town.

A number of bills were passed and ordered paid.

Next regular meeting is billed for Thursday, April 6.

Change in Livestock Inspection Act.

By the changes in the Stock Inspection Act, there will be a new system of inspection. The inspectors at country points will be done away with.

Inspectors will be located at Moosejaw and Winnipeg to inspect all Alberta stock being shipped thru these points. Stock going thru the Edmonton and Calgary Yards will not need for their inspection at these points.

A shipper shipping out of the province will be provided with an Inspector to go out and read the brands on his stock, provided he gives five days' notice. The bill will mean that there will be only one inspection of stock and one fee.

Mrs. Punkie's Meetings.

Under the auspices of U. F. A. Local, Mrs. Punkie, well known here in connection with recent political campaigns, will hold series of meetings in this district, as follows—

Spruce Grove, March 16
Holborn, March 17
Granville, March 18

Accident at Carvel.

While the Barker steam outfit was engaged in sawing operations on Mr. John A. Barry's place at the Lake, on Friday last, the belt operating the saw slipped off. One of the men undertook to replace it, and the saw table was tipped over, knocking over two men.

Mr. D. Barker received a cut over the nose, and Mr. Barney Miller received injuries to his hand and arm. Mr. Berrie brought the injured men to town in his car, where they received medical attention from both local doctors.

Re-value Veterans' Farms.

Due to the action taken by the G. W. V. A. it is likely that a complete re-valuation of the soldier farmers' stock, land and equipment will be made by the S. S. Board. The case of the veteran agriculturists is one of sore spots of the re-establishment system with the men who fought. It is felt that this is the right time to put the returned men on a basis which will allow them to compete with the average farmer.

Mr. William Gilbert,

Of course, it is impossible to say how many took part in the affair, but it is not likely the outlaws numbered more than two, in which case they are both accounted for. The one captured had no money to speak of in his possession, but he may have cached it somewhere, and when he sees the rope before him it will be likely to make him talk. They seem to have a pretty straight case against him. Not only was he captured practically in the act, but they have another important clue. He owns up to his name frankly enough, and it seems the revolver found on the scene of the crime had his initials, "J. T."—Jim Travers, cut in the grip. In fact, he admits the revolver is "What's wrong, Miss Harris? Are you ill?"

Beulah's breath had stopped at the mention of Travers' name, and she staggered to a chair. Harris, too, was overcome.

"We knew him down East," Beulah explained, when she had somewhat recovered her composure. "I could not have thought it possible!"

"I didn't think he would have carried it that far," said Harris, at length, speaking very slowly and sadly. "Jim, Jim, you've made a worse mistake than mine."

Mary learned of the disclosure in a few minutes, and followed Beulah upstairs.

"You poor child!" she said, as she overtook her daughter.

"It's not me," she shot back. "It's Jim. He must be saved, some way. It's impossible to think I won't 'xay

Headaches Gone

Perhaps you can imagine what this means to one who has suffered terribly with headaches for ten years.

Read about it in this letter.

Mrs. Tena A. Smith, Country Harbor Cross Roads, N. S., writes:

"I feel that if anyone can recommend Dr. Chase's medicine I certainly can. I suffered for ten years from severe headaches, and although I took all kinds of headache powders they just relieved me at the time. I became very nervous and run-down, and everything seemed to trouble me. I have taken eighteen boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and it has made an entirely new person of me. I felt that I could not have lived without it. I do not have one headache now for every hundred I used to have, and my nerves are good and strong. I just weighed 109 pounds when I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and now I weigh 121. Knowing what this treatment has done for me, I cannot too highly recommend it to others."

it, no matter what they say! Let them find what they like! But he's in a hole, and we've got to get him out."

The mother shook her head with some recollection of the blindness of love. And yet her own heart refused to accept any idea of guilt on the part of Travers.

"I don't want to be alone, mother," said Beulah. "I want to be alone, to think. I'm going down by the river." As she strode rapidly through the paths in the cotton-woods the girl gradually became conscious of one dominating impulse in her maze of emotions. She must see Jim. She must see him at once. There were things to be said that needed—that admitted—no witness. She knew that. Arctura or one of the men would surely ride to town for her, or with her, but this was a task for her alone. They must know nothing until it was over.

Outwardly calm, but inwardly burning with impatience, she returned to the house and went through the form of eating supper. Then she dallied through the evening, giving her attention to Allan until all the household, except her mother, had gone to bed.

"I will wait with Allan to-night," her mother said. "You need rest more than I do. Lie down in my room and try to get some sleep."

Her mother kissed her, and Beulah went to her room. But not to sleep. When she reached the house she slipped gently down the stairs, through the front yard, and into the darkness. For a moment she had been stabled. She harnessed him with some difficulty in the darkness, and there he stood, waiting for her. For a hundred yards she walked him; then she drew him off the hard road on to the grass and toward him he trotted. Half a mile from the house she was swinging at a hard gallop down the dark valley. The dark night wind pressed its caresses on her flushed cheek, but her heart beat fast with excitement and impatience, and she galloped the burning horse to the limit of his speed. More than once even, she drew the reins and almost fell over the treacherous badger holes, but she had learned to ride like the saddle itself, and she merely tightened the reins and urged him faster.

Two hours of such violence were a safety-valve to her emotions, and both horse and rider were content to ride the little town at a walk. Here and there a coal-oil lamp shed its cube of yellow light through an unblinded window, but the streets were deserted and in utter darkness. She had now reached the point at which her general plan to see Travers must be worked out into detail, and she allowed the horse his time as she turned the matter over in her mind. She had no doubt that if she found Travers she would be able to get him out of jail in a matter of minutes. But she shrank from making the request. She might do so at a last resort; but it possible she meant to seek out her lover—for so she thought of him—for herself. She knew that the jail was in the smaller town, where crude affairs, where the prisoner was locked up and usually left without a guard. The first thing was to find the jail.

At a crossing her horse almost collided with a boy turning home from some late errand. "Oh, My Boy," she said. "Come here, please, I want you to help me."

The boy approached hesitatingly, as though suspicious that some kind of trick were being played on him.

"Can you tell me," she said, in a low voice, "where the jail is? I'll give you a dollar if you do."

"There ain't no jail here, miss," he replied frankly, evidently satisfied that the question was bona fide.

"There's a coop, but you wouldn't give a dime to see it. It's just a kind of a shed."

"That's just what I want to find," she continued, "and I'll give you a dollar to show me where it is."

"Easy pickin'," said the boy. "Steer your horse along this way."

He led her through the main part of the town to where a one-story building, somewhat apart, stood aloof in the darkness.

"Some coop, ain't it?" said her guide, with boyish irony. "My dad says that's what we git fer votin' against the Government. The fine truck's in the front end, an' there's a cell with bars behind. Do you want to see that, too?"

"Yes, that's what I want to see, but I can find it myself now, thank you."

"Say, miss, you better be kerful. They've got a murderer in there now—Oh, say—with a sudden change in his policy—maybe he's somethin' to you! They ain't never nothin' against him yet."

"Yes, he's a good deal to me," she said.

"Brother!" he demanded, with disconcerting persistence.

"No."

If her eyes could have pierced the darkness she would have seen a broad smile of understanding and sympathy on the young face. But it was a sympathetic smile withal. "Then I guess this dollar stands for 'beat it'?" he remarked.

"You win," she said, falling into his snare. Also, forget it."

"I getchah, miss," he said, trotting off. Then he called back through the darkness, "An' I hope he gits off."

"God bless him for that," she said to herself, as she dismounted and made her way to the back of the building. She saw the outline of a door, which was undoubtedly locked, and further down the same wall was a little square window, with bars on it. There appeared to be only one cell, so there was no problem of locating the right one.

She stole up along the wall, but the window was too high for her. Searching about the place, she found a square tin, such as the ranchers use to carry coal-oil. Mounting this she was able to bring her face to the bars. The window was open for ventilation, and she strained her ear, but at first could hear nothing for the tumultuous beating of her own heart. But at length she seemed to catch the sound of regular breathing within.

"Jim," she said, in a low voice, listening intently. But there was no response.

"Jim," she repeated, a little louder. She fancied she heard a stir, and the sound of breathing seemed to cease.

"Yes!" came a quick reply. "Yes! Who is it?"

"Come to the window, Jim."

In a moment she saw the outline of his face through the darkness.

"Beulah Harris," he demanded, in his quiet voice, "what are you doing here?"

A great happiness surged about her at the sound of his voice and the warmth of his breath against her face. "I might ask the same, Jim, but such questions are embarrassing. Any way, I am on the right side of the wall."

She saw his teeth gleam in the darkness. What a wonderful soul he was!

"But you shouldn't have come like this," he protested, and his voice was serious enough. "You are compromising yourself."

"Not—!" she answered. "These bars are more inflexible than the stiffest chaperone. And I just had to see you, Jim, at once. We've got to get you out of here."

"How's Allan?"

"Getting better."

"And your father? Pretty angry at me, I guess."

"No. Father ain't angry any more. He's just sorry."

"Times are changing, Beulah. But if he would that sack around my neck in sorrow, I don't want him at it when he's cross."

She laughed a little, mirthful ripple. Then, with sudden seriousness, "But, Jim, we should be getting out of here. We've got to get you out of here."

"Not me, Beulah," he answered. "I'm not going to be a burden to you. I'll drop on me, but I know a few things they don't. Shall I tell you what I know?"

"Why?"

"Because it would seem like arguing—like trying to prove you are innocent. And you don't need to prove anything to me. You understand? You don't need to prove anything to me."

She felt his eyes hot on her face through the darkness. "You don't need to prove anything to me," she repeated.

For a moment he held himself in restraint. The words were simple enough, but he knew what they meant. And this country girl, whom he had learned to like on her father's farm, had grown larger and larger in his mind of things with the passing weeks. At first he had tried to dissuade himself, to think of it only as a passing fancy, and remember that he was engaged in the serious business of earning enough money to build a shack on a homestead, and buy a team and a plough, and a cow and some bits of furniture. It would be a plain, simple life, but Beulah was accustomed—

What had Beulah to do with it? He closed himself for a moment, and turned his mind to the mellow fields where he would follow the plough until the sun slipped into the Rockies. And then he would turn the horses loose for food and rest, and in the shack the jackpine knots would be lying in the kitchen stove, and the little table would be set, and Beulah—

At first he had tried to dissuade himself, to think of it only as a passing fancy, and remember that he was engaged in the serious business of earning enough money to build a shack on a homestead, and buy a team and a plough, and a cow and some bits of furniture. It would be a plain, simple life, but Beulah was accustomed—

What had Beulah to do with it? He closed himself for a moment, and turned his mind to the mellow fields where he would follow the plough until the sun slipped into the Rockies. And then he would turn the horses loose for food and rest, and in the shack the jackpine knots would be lying

Government Criticised By Meighen Over The Appointment Of Speaker

Ottawa.—The first session of the fourteenth parliament of Canada opened with the swearing in of members and the signing of the roll. On the first item of business of the Commons the election of Hon. Rodolphus Lemieux, member for Gaspé, as Speaker; the Government was taken to task by the leader of the opposition, Right Hon. Arthur Meighen.

The Government, said Mr. Meighen, had taken unto itself the functions of parliament. It was the right of parliament and not of the Government or the Prime Minister, to say who should be Speaker. Yet on the day the new cabinet was announced, the Premier had also announced that Hon. Mr. Lemieux would be the new Speaker of the House. Mr. Meighen agreed with all that the Prime Minister had said with regard to the qualifications of Mr. Lemieux for the position of Speaker.

The leader of the opposition also criticized the Government for departing from the custom of promoting the deputy-speaker to the rank of Speaker. This practice had been followed for years past, but the present Government had seen fit to depart from it, despite the fact that George Bovin, member for Sheffield, had all the qualifications necessary and in addition had served with such satisfaction as deputy-speaker that the choice of him as Speaker would have given eminent satisfaction.

The Prime Minister and Hon. T. A. Crerar, leader of the Progressives, voiced appreciation of Mr. Lemieux in respect to his lengthy parliamentary experience and his qualifications for the position of Speaker. Mr. Crerar caused an outburst of laughter when he prefaced his remarks by stating that he spoke "for this deplorable annex of the Liberal party," a phrase which had been used last year by Right Hon. Mr. Meighen in referring to Mr. Crerar and his followers.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux was declared elected by acclamation and taking the chair, expressed his gratification of the honor which had been conferred on him and said it would be his pleasure to serve the House, not as a party man, but as a servant of parliament and of the country.

HEART WOULD BEAT LIKE A TRIP HAMMER

Heart trouble has of late years become very prevalent. Sometimes a pain catches you in the region of the heart, and then your heart skips beats, palpitates, throbs, or beats with such rapidity and violence you think it is going to burst.

You have weak and dizzy spells, sinking sensations, are nervous, irritable and depressed, and if you attempt to walk upstairs or any distance you get all out of breath.

We know of no remedy that will do so much to make the heart regain strength and vigor, regulate its beat and restore it to a healthy normal condition as will

MILBURN'S

HEART AND NERVE PILLS

Mrs. Chadwick, Delhi, Ont., writes: "I had palpitation of the heart, and the least exercise, such as going upstairs or up a hill, my heart would beat like a trip-hammer and at times I was dizzy-headed and had a sinking sensation as if my time were near."

A friend suggested I try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, so I procured three boxes, and by the time the first one was used I began to improve. In all I took six boxes, and now although in my 66th year I feel like a young girl; no dizziness or heart-thumping, and can walk miles without fatigue. At time of sickness I weighed 120 lbs. now I weigh 120.

Suffrage for Women in Britain

London.—By a vote of 208 to 60, the House of Commons permitted Lord Robert Cecil to introduce a bill designed to extend suffrage to women on the same terms as to men. The division on the question of the bill's introduction resulted from the opposition of Col. Martin Archer-Shee, who said the measure would enfranchise 5,000,000 women. After the division was taken, the bill was given its first reading.

Knock Man Down, Car Is His.

Lots of things are done in North Carolina and South Carolina that, for example, Alberta is not guilty of. In the twin Carolinas, for instance, they have a most peculiar law.

The courts have ruled that a pedestrian struck by an automobile can sue for the possession of the vehicle. This law has become so popular of late, it has been upheld so often with the loss of his car by the owner, that a growing number of people in these two states, when they feel the need of a motor car for business or pleasure, walk forth, strut in the right-of-way of a motor car, are knocked down, institute suit, and quickly obtain possession of the car that injured them.

The National Automobile Dealers' Association is waging a legal war to bring about a repeal of this statute.

The back card of the calendar is printed on both sides and contains a wealth of information—a blank form for making an inventory of your belongings, health and household hints, weight and measures, farm tables, first aid hints and many others. It also includes the regular information generally looked for on the first pages of the family almanac.

Murdock's Straight Reply

Tells Laborites He Favors Government Retention of S. N. R.

James Murdock, federal minister of labor, has replied to charges made against him in the trades and labor council, says a Hamilton dispatch. Mr. Murdock asks the council not to place much reliance on the report of a Toronto paper concerning him and announces that he is in favor of the public ownership and operation of Canada's 22,000 miles of nationally-owned railways, and believes that they will pay under public ownership. As to his reported opposition to unemployment insurance, he says he favors doing everything possible to furnish employment rather than insurance against unemployment.

GENERAL DEBILITY FOLLOWS INFLUENZA

The After Effects Often More Serious Than the Disease Itself

No reasonable precaution to avert an attack of influenza should be spared. The disease itself often proves fatal and its after effects among those who are spared, make the life of the victim one of almost constant misery. Almost, any of those who have been attacked by this trouble will tell their present condition of health is not most of them will answer: "Since I had the influenza I have never been fully well." This trouble leaves behind it a persistent weakness of the limbs, shortness of breath, bad digestion, palpitation of the heart and a feeling of languor after even slight exertion. This is due to the thin-blooded condition in which the patient is left after the fever and influenza have subsided. This condition will continue until the blood is built up, and strengthening the nerves without causing a fair treatment of the blood. Pink Pills. The value of this medicine in cases of this kind is shown by the statement of Mr. Edward J. McGuire, Pembroke, Ont., who says:—"In the fall of 1918 I was attacked with the influenza. I was confined to my room for three weeks, and although the influenza subsided it did not regain my health. As a matter of fact I seemed to be growing weaker, was subject to fainting spells, and my feet and ankles were badly swollen. The doctor told me that my condition had developed into a serious case of anemia, and although I was under his care for over two months I was not improving in the way. At this stage one of my friends advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was loath to do so, as I began to think my case hopeless. However, I was finally persuaded to try them, and by the time I had used two boxes there was no doubt they were helping me. I continued taking the pills until I had used a dozen boxes, when I found that every symptom of the trouble had left and I was again enjoying the best of health. I returned to my work and have ever since been in the best of health and that I owe it entirely to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I think that anyone who is suffering from the after effects of influenza or any form of anemia should give this medicine a fair trial."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Very convenient for summer wear are these pyjamas, developed in pink pongette bound in white batiste. The coat is slipped on over the head and tied below the waistline with the self material pink, finished in regular four-in-hand fashion.

The pyjamas are easily made and easily laundered, and can be made more practical still by developing them in some material which eliminates the necessity of laundering.

For those who prefer nightgowns, the same scallop treatment may be carried out at V-neck, sleeves and around the bottom.

Highway Fatalities

During the eighteen months that United States troops were engaged in the war overseas, 48,000 soldiers lost their lives on the battlefield. In exactly the same period, according to the New York Herald, 91,000 persons, of whom 25,000 were children, were killed by automobiles on United States highways.

Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has brought many to complete recovery of health and happiness. It is, known and prized in every section of this broad land.

In New York City there are more Jews than there are in Asia, Africa, South America, Australia and Great Britain combined.

Farmers to Gain $200,000,000

Advance in Price of Wheat Has Good Effect on Business

Western Canadian farmers, on the basis of recent advances in wheat prices, stand to realize about $200,000,000 more out of the 1921 crop than appeared possible at the time the slump in prices had reached the lowest level in December. Wheat prices now are approximately 35 cents a bushel higher than the low level figure of the closing month of 1921. There are about 70,000,000 bushels of wheat still in the hands of farmers to be sold, it is estimated. The advance in price, which is world-wide, will benefit farmers who have not disposed of their crops. The additional wealth available, if the price is maintained or if it advances still more, will have a splendid effect on conditions throughout Western Canada.

J. MILLER.

Tuesday Evening's Show.

The entertainment given Tuesday evening last under the auspices of U. F. Local proved a very interesting affair. The movies had a cheer-up effect on the auditors, and the address given by Mrs. Puncks was well received, although the time allotted her seemed all too short. The principal speaker was Hon Geo Hoadley, and he gave a complete dissertation of the aims and objects of the present Government, so far as the agriculturists of the Province are concerned. The hall was crowded and everyone went away highly pleased with the good speeches heard.

A Wooden Wedding.

A charming house party was held in Stony Plain on the 12th inst., when friends of Mr and Mrs John Knebel assembled at their home and helped celebrate the fifth anniversary of their marriage.

This being the celebration of the wooden wedding, the presents from friends were numerous and not too costly, all going to show the high esteem in which this worthy couple is held. Good wishes were given for a long and happy life, and a happy time was spent by all.

Among those present were, Mr and Mrs Jacob Miller, Mr and Mrs Ph. Miller, Mr and Mrs Ph. Schrum, Mr and Mrs P. Schultz, Mr and Mrs A. Knebel, Mr and Mrs O. Oppenheimer, Mr B. Knebel, Mrs Hy Lutz, Mr Val Knebel, Mr and Mrs M. Treit.

The "Farm's" Finish.

While the Hon Geo Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture, was in town on Tuesday last, a deputation consisting of the Mayor and Secretary of the Town, and Pres. Lundy and Secretary Robertson of the Agricultural Society, waited on the Minister, to get his views regarding the future of our Demonstration Farm.

The Hon. Minister, in a very frank manner, intimated that the present intention of the Government was to close down the present layout at the Farm, and the selling of the entire holdings with the exception of about 30 acres for experimental plots. The plot secured from the townsite some few years ago, being situate at the head of Main St. is the portion which it is the intention to retain. Mr Hoadley emphasized the fact that the sole object was economy, and that two other farms and 2 Agricultural schools were sharing the same fate as the layout at Stony. The Minister intimated that the people's money should not be invested in any scheme in which the poorer farmer could not share, as well as his wealthy neighbor.

In reply to a remark, Mr Hoadley said that any fool could run a Farm if he had the people's money to fall back on.

The delegation thanked the Minister for his information and withdrew.
